Fifty thousand to the vessel, experiments in recent years people cheered themselves hoarse; the demonstrated the great efficiency of these keels in prevating excessive rolling.

Hydraulic geer is used in steering the vessel. The normal coal supply is 1,000 tons, and the capacity of the bunkers is 2,000 tons. As in other ships of this type, the arrangement of the bunkers is such as to afford considerable incidental protection to the machinery. 18th, issued his farewell order ending $1,500; Gallatin, $1,800 to $1,600; Grant | big guns of the warships boomed out in the case of Annie Condon against the American relief expedition in City, $1,300 to $1.400; Harrisonville, a salute, and every steam whistle $1,600 to $1,700; Higginsville, $1,700 to within a radius of five miles shrieked $1,600; Huntsville, $1,400 to $1,500; its loudest as the steel monster glided into the water. DESCRIPTION OF THE OHIO.

to Take Care of Herself. The Ohio is a sister ship of the Maine. The Ohio is a sister snip of the Maine, now building at the works of the William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine Building Co., and of the Missouri, building at the vard of the Newport News Ship Building and Dry Dock Co.
The hull, which is divided like those the most recent battleships, is built of steel and is unsheathed. It is 388 feet long on the load water line, 72 feet 21/2 inches extreme breadth, and at a mean draft of 23 feet 6 inches displaces 12,230

The hull is protected abreast of th The half is protected abreast of the boilers and engines by a side armor beit extending 3 feet 6 inches above the load water line, and 4 feet below it, having a thickness of 11 inches for a depth of 4 feet 6 inches, tapering to 7½ inches at the bottom of the belt; and by the casemate armor 6 inches thick, which extends from the side pelt to the unper deck, and is the side belt to the upper deck, and is worked from the center of the forward to the center of the after barbett. At the ends of this casemate armor diagonal armor 9 inches thick extends from the sides of the vessel to the barbett armor. In the casemate thus formed are placed ten of the 6-inch guns. Above this, on the upper dock, four of the 6-inch guns are placed, in the vicinity of which 6-inch armor is worked far enough forward and aft to afford protection to the crews of pressures by 48 inches stroke. The collective I. H. P. of the main engines with their air and circulating is about 16,000 when the vessel is making a speed of 18 knots. It should be stated here that the Ohio ranks next to the Georgia class of battleships in our navy in regard to speed. The Georgia and class, which will have the greatest speed of any battleship yet authorized by congress are designed to make 19 knots.

A refrigerating room on the berth deck forward furnishes cold storage, and the ship is supplied with an ice machine of the dense air type that can produce the cooling effect of two tons of ice per day.

The construction of the Ohio and her class was authorized by congress on May 1, 1898, when the Spanish war demonstrated the wisdom of a much greater increase of the pavy. The keel was laid on April 22, 1899, and the contract price of hull and machinery is $2,899,000.

Her complement is 35 officers and 511 men. DISPUTE OVER A CORPSE.
